Core Services Subcommittees (CSS) are the subject matters experts that can more clearly define the scope of MLN core services and funding needs.

CSS determine service delivery policies and models, create metrics to evaluate the success of the services, help to gather data in support of the metrics using data to evaluate the success of the services.

CSS consider future changes in user needs, advances in technology, opportunities for collaboration, and other drivers that might influence these services over time and participate in procurements and other administrative processes.

The work of the subcommittees focuses on services, not platforms.
