Item Type: Uncheck all and then go back in to select specific options to indicate the sorts of digital items you are looking for.

To see everything available leave them all checked.

Within Data: Use this to define how your search terms will work. You can search just the title of the resource, all the fields within the data, or all the fields and the content to find your search term.

Search Within Fields: The search within fields button opens a new window. Select from the dropdown menu the Format/Item type you want to search. Then select the metadata Field you would like to search and Click Add. In the example above the Item Type Image has been chosen and the Subject Field has been selected. This tells the system to search all images in the just the subject field for the entered search term.

Date: Select a range of dates to keep your search specific timeframes.

Search For: Select which words you want to search.

All Keywords will search for everything that has any of the words.

If the search was for Archie Bray, All keywords would search both Archie and Bray separately or together.

Any Keywords will turn up results that might just have Archie or just Bray.

Exact Phrase Match will provide results that specifically come up as "Archie Bray".

This is important to know if you are searching for a specific name or title.

Once you have determined search parameters click on the magnifying glass on the search bar to search.

Has the Following will allow filtering by other features like Geotags and OCR.

These abilities are not yet included in everything, but they are growing with the collection.

OCR means Optical Character Recognition.

That means the text inside the document has been made machine readable beyond the data that people have input to describe the resource (metadata).

For example, it recognized the words we were searching for within the old typewritten pages of the document.

Geotags are another kind of metadata used to identify geographic locations within the materials.

The examples shown below have geographic coverage

These last facets Within Data and Date will give you the opportunity to go back and narrow down the dates or change the filters in place for titles, fields, and content.
